Grayling Vikings Meet Manev

SINCE JUNE 25 of this year, when the Displaced Persons Act was signed by the President, a good many Americans—and particularly Midwesterners—have been working themselves up to a mild state of nerves at the thought of some 200,000 foreigners being turned loose in the United States. Before drawing any drastic conclusions, it might be well to look at the law first, and learn just who the DP's are, what they'll do upon arrival in America and how we will be affected by their presence.

Those who live in the Midwest agricultural belt probably have more interest in these Displaced Persons from Europe than any other group of American citizens, and will probably meet many of them. It is reasonable to assume that a substantial number of DP's will settle in the Middle West where employment opportunities in agriculture and industry are known to exist. Of special interest is the fact that not less than 30% of them will be farm workers.

But first, what is a Displaced Person? There have been many fantastic notions circulated, but a brief and accurate definition might be: "A Displaced Person is one who, as a direct result of World War II, is now stateless and without a home to which he can return and be free of any religious or political persecution."

The act directly affecting these persons, labeled Public Law 774 of the 80th Congress, provides for the admission to the United States during the next two years of 202,000 DP's and 2,000 orphans. It also provides that 5,000 aliens who entered this country prior to April 1, 1948, as temporary visitors—but who are actually Displaced Persons—may be permitted to remain here if they are otherwise admissible under immigration laws.

The law itself is widely condemned as discriminatory and as a decidedly poor substitute for Congress further handling only half the money estimated as needed to carry it through. The net result is that instead of the 100,000 people who were to have been admitted by the end of the first year, 40,000 will be closer to the actual number.

Second priority is given the 30% who were engaged in agriculture and who will continue such work upon coming to the United States. Chances are also favorable for those with qualifications for household construction, clothing and garment work, scientific, educational and professional pursuits. Provision will be made for filling the needs of a locality with the desired type of workers.

Many Americans will instantly ask "What about the Germans? Are they included?" Under regular present immigration quotas, 25,000 German nationals were admitted yearly. Under the DP Act, 50% of that number, or 12,500, will be admitted as DP's. They were born in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania or Yugoslavia but have never lived in Germany. The other half of the original quota number is restored to German and Austrian nationals by virtue of regular immigration.

Admission for all Displaced Persons must be requested by other relatives in this country or individuals who are willing to provide employment and housing.

Almost all states have made provisions by now to handle the influx of DP's, with three main religious groups, aiding state and federal governments: the National Catholic Bishop's Settlement Council, Church World Service (Protestant) and the United Service for New Americans (Jewish).

Representative of what is being done in the Middle Western states to solve the many DP problems as possible during the first few months of their arrival, is the work of the Rev. James E. Doyle, director of the Bishop's Settlement Committee of the Archdiocese of Chicago. With a committee appointed by the state, which includes directors of the Illinois State Employment Service, Father Doyle conducted a survey to find out just how many DP's Illinois could absorb without displacing any of its own residents.

To get to the core of the question, he placed a small want-ad in the agricultural magazine, Prairie Farmer, which stated simply that Displaced Persons were available as farm help; would any Illinois farmer be interested in sponsoring one or more? The response was beyond all expectations, and requests for DP farm help are still being filled.

Hoping for law study in America is Czech-foreigner Henry Sellenek is now Zdenka Rolenchova, young Czech DP. "DP's he opposed Soviet infiltration."

detailed forms from the council, dealing with housing, employment, transportation and general information about the sponsor and the DP requested.

Each case is carefully investigated, right down to the local parish if necessary. If the investigation proves satisfactory, Father Doyle certifies the application and sends it to the DP Commission in Washington. Following approval by the commission, papers are then sent to the proper state or local authorities for their approval.

ONE of Father Doyle's observations on the reluctance of the DP's to leave their homes is that many of them are of one class, race or creed. Actually, the 205,000 will be well balanced in this regard. He points out that "we forget that if there had not been a war, over 400,000 Europeans would have been coming in under regular immigration quotas. The DP Act provides for only half that many to be admitted. Remember, this wonderful nation of ours was built on immigration. The United States has always been known as an asylum for people suffering from religious or political pressure, and it continues to be a haven."

Many Americans have expressed the fear that the DP's will bunch up, forming their own tight little groups based on common overseas backgrounds. According to the Chicago office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, such will not happen. Marcus T. Newell, District Operations Officer for the Service, believes on this score: "We can safely say that the DP's who are coming to this section of the country, or any section, will not segregate according to nationalities or beliefs, but rather will find their respective ways into all parts of the nation."

Neely, like Father Doyle, believes that much patience will be required on the part of every American in dealing with and helping Displaced Persons. "They can either be an asset or a liability to us," he warned, "depending on the guidance we provide for them. They don't want to be regarded as objects of pity or curiosity or charity, even though they have been through experiences that try men's souls. The fact that they have survived at all is indicative of their value to society."

"All they ask is to realize their cherished hopes—to hold their heads up and be free men!"

Mechanized American farming will be a delight to the Hungarian farm family, above. Almost 30% of the Displaced Persons quota will have "green thumbs."

COX-BARRUS UNITED IN MARRIAGE

A single ring ceremony, formed by Rev. Fr. John Stein on Thanksgiving Day at St. Mary's Church in Grayling, united Miss Barbara Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Cox, and Mr. William D. Barrus, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Barrus of East Lansing.

LEAPING from the surface in a flurry of spray, a huge black bass flings himself into the crisp autumn air, shakes furiously in an attempt to expel the embedded hook, and dives back into the water with an angry, frustrated slap of his tail. A tingling wave of excitement is your reaction. It's a ticklish battle in the confines of the tree-fringed rocky cove, with your skill being tested by the wiles of a notably tricky fish. Back and forth he scurries, then once more zooms skyward the moment he gains a bit of slack line. This is his instinctive rule for tossing out the barb and securing freedom.

Turkey Treats

By TONI DeLAY
NOWADAYS Women's Editor

LOOKING FOR an extra-special recipe that will make a real treat out of leftover turkey? Here are four mouth-watering dishes that your family will love. They will never guess they were inspired by leftovers. Clip and save these recipes for year-round use with leftover chicken, too.

NOWADAYS Kitchen-Dishes

SANDWICH SURPRISE

- 1 cup cooked turkey meat... Put through food chopper
1/2 cup ground almonds... Add to turkey
4 tablespoons finely chopped celery
Season to taste
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Salad dressing... Add enough dressing to give the mixture a spreading consistency

Remove crusts from an uncut loaf of day-old white sandwich bread. Slice vertically to make three or four slices about 1/2 inch thick. Cut the bottom slice thicker than the other three, since it helps in placing the loaf when served. Spread slices, except top and bottom, with turkey filling between two slices. Try cream cheese mixed with cream and chopped olives for the second layer, and egg salad for the third. Or make a double-decker sandwich, using just turkey and cheese.

If you're making this party fare, you might want to dress up the loaf with a frosting made of cream cheese and cream. Spread it over the loaf to give a fluffy effect. Garnish with radish slices and chopped chives.

TURKEY CHOWDER

- 2 oz. salt pork, finely diced... Cook in sauce pan until browned
1 cup cooked turkey meat, diced... Add to pork and onion
2 1/2 cups potatoes, diced... Add to above mixture
1 cup celery, diced... Add to above mixture
2 cups turkey stock... Add to above mixture

Place on cookie sheet and bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) until nicely browned, about 20 to 30 minutes. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

TURKEY TETRAZINI

- 1/2 lb. spaghetti... Break into small pieces, then cook in large quantity of boiling salted water until tender.
3 tablespoons butter... Prepare cream sauce by melting butter and flour; then blend thoroughly. Add cold broth, stirring constantly, cook until thickened.
1 cup heavy cream... Add to sauce
Salt and pepper... Add to sauce
Cooking sherry... Add to sauce

Add to half of the sauce. Add well-drained spaghetti to other half. Put spaghetti in preheated casserole. Make a hole in center of spaghetti, then pour the turkey mixture into it.

Grated Parmesan cheese... Sprinkle over top of the casserole.

Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) to thoroughly heat the contents and brown the top. Yield: 4 to 5 servings.

TURKEY FRENCH TOAST

- 1 cup cooked turkey meat, chopped fine... Combine meat and onion
1 tablespoon onion, grated
Combine meat and onion
1/2 cup hot leftover gravy, or 1/2 cup white sauce
Salt and pepper

Add gravy or sauce to turkey mixture and season to taste.

1 egg, beaten
1/2 cup milk
Combine egg, milk

Make sandwiches of 8 slices of bread and the filling. If desired, cut to make 24 half-sized sandwiches. Dip sandwiches in egg-milk mixture. Melt 4 tablespoons fat in skillet. When fat is hot enough to sizzle a drop of water, brown the sandwiches on both sides. Makes 1 full size, or 8 half sandwiches.

Lansing — Governor-elect G. Mennen Williams has a tough job on his hands.

As a Democratic governor, succeeding the crusading Republican Governor Kim Sigler, he will have a Republican dominated administration board and a Republican dominated state legislature to work with. He favored retention of the sales tax amendment which diverts 76 per cent of the sales tax revenue back to home government, yet he will face a prospective deficit in the state treasury at the end of the coming fiscal year unless new or higher taxes are imposed by the legislature.

The budget problem alone will call for a miracle.

Ironically enough, the man who counseled Governor Sigler on reforms for state government is slated to be replaced by the governor-elect. It was the conviction of John Perkins, controller who heads the new department of administration, that Michigan's 100-odd state agencies should be streamlined whereby the governor could be held responsible for the success or failure of their performance.

Centralization of authority in the hands of the governor, yes, that was the conclusion as voiced by Mr. Perkins, himself an able and competent person in his field.

Only by placing authority in the hands of the governor—the power to hire or fire the heads of leading state departments, would the State of Michigan achieve direct responsibility, so Mr. Perkins reasoned.

Quoting from a recent paper prepared by Mr. Perkins: "The cry of 'too much centralization' has been raised without seeming awareness that government has really centralized in Washington because there has not been more integration in the state capitals."

The present state controller sees clearly that "acute fiscal crisis" is just ahead for the State of Michigan and that "a deficit of millions of dollars" appears now to be inevitable. Higher taxes are now freely forecast for our federal government. The same logic, applied to Michigan, would bring a parallel conclusion.

If retail sales continue their present decline, state sales tax revenues will soon start to fall. It looks like the time of reckoning may not be far off.

This story was reported at Lozon's Store. It happened in a little swamp north of Frederic. A man was hunting in the swamp and he wounded a six point buck, the deer fell and got up and started to run. The hunter followed it through the swamp. He saw his hunting partner on a little ridge and was about to yell that the deer was coming his way when he saw a ten point buck standing in front of him, he grabbed the deer by the tail and the buck turned to charge him, he then took the deer by the horns and threw him to the ground. His friend then came and shot the deer.

Protecting the Food Supply

Country Gentleman recently published an editorial dealing with one of the most important yet least understood problems confronting the American people. The theme of it is found in its title and subtitle: "America's advantage must be maintained. Only by protecting our sources of abundant food can we continue to lead the world."

Few of us realize the extent to which our standard of living is dependent upon food which is moderately priced in relation to income. Over a long period of time, food has taken only about 24 per cent of our spendable personal income. The balance has been left to buy other things—the things which keep industry going and employment. As the Country Gentleman said, "Nowhere else in the world has so much been left . . . to be used in raising the general standard of living." In other countries, by contrast, the cost of food accounts for as much as 70 per cent of the average worker's earnings. Little remains for anything else—so industry lags and living standards are low.

The Country Gentleman recommends a two-faceted program to assure an ample and permanent food supply—first adequate safeguards for farmers, and, secondly, conservation of soil and other productive resources. The second offers a challenge to farmers, and others, to prevent the exhaustion and depletion of the land by adopting proven farming processes that make for conservation and soil maintenance.

To cite a current example, the nation needs more meat animals. They furnish food and put fertilizer back in the soil. Meat animals make food of grasses, fodder and waste products which are not suitable for human diet. Consumption of meat has tended to rise while supplies have tended to decline. To achieve greater production we must have fair prices to encourage producers. Food is the basis of the American economy.

SHORT STORY

Footsteps In the Dark

By HELEN BEMIS

AT FIVE-THIRTY P. M. as usual, George Madison left the First National bank of Crosstown. He started up the busy street with that deliberate tread of his, then swung back to the corner. It might look suspicious to change his ways to-night.

"The same, sir?" asked old Tim, blind since the battle of the Marne in World War I.

"Yes," said George, wincing as his nickel banged the tin cup. "A bit cool for April," offered Tim, handing up the Crosstown Evening News.

"Get to know weather, don't we—being out in it every day like the an' you. Say—jus' how many years you been comin' from the First National to get my papers?"

George started, paled. Couldn't let on to the old fool that after tonight he wouldn't be around, couldn't explain that after tonight he'd be a free man, a man of means, no longer a slave. Only thing you could call a bank teller, wasn't it?

"It's—It's about 15 years," came from George's dry lips.

"No doubt the bank folks are pretty sure of you by this time—commented Tim. "They're mighty nice to me, too—from the president down."

"Yes, of course," chopped out George, swinging away.

Mrs. Murray's gloomy boarding house irritated him more than ever tonight. But after warm food and lively table conversation with the other boarders, his confidence rose.

He was able to let himself into the First National that evening, nearly as calmly as he'd done hundreds of former evenings. Only this time he would not be working overtime for his superiors. Just for himself.

Finally, he was stuffing big rolls of currency into a traveling bag. He hoped his luck would hold, that Henry, the night watchman, would doze in the back room, as usual.

His luck did hold. It held so well it was uncanny. Even his aged automobile ran perfectly till close to daybreak, when he abandoned it and hopped a fast freight for the west. His chief objective now was to reach a certain man highly skilled in plastic surgery, a man who'd do anything for a price.

GEORGE MADISON now became James Farnum. His hair was bleached white, his upper lip was smooth-shaven, his once good-looking nose was unpleasantly aquiline. Even his voice was higher pitched. He not only looked different, he felt different. He was rich.

In Alaska, he went into fur trading, became surprisingly prosperous. He remained a bachelor and avoided making close friends. Three years of this and he grew restless. He went to Chicago, then to New York and took in the best shows and night clubs. He ran into Ed Hatchet, former clerk in the old

First National of Crosstown. He talked with him at length and wasn't recognized.

So he decided to return to Crosstown and take a look around. After all it was his home.

He put up at the Crosstown hotel with no questions asked. In the hotel lobby, on the streets and in the shops, he was treated like any stranger.

One day as he passed the bank, he saw old blind Tim sitting on his customary corner. Tim was selling a newspaper to a strange man. "Guess I'll drop a five spot in Tim's cup for luck," decided George. It gave him a warm feeling inside to be going toward old Tim again.

Common sense says "Slow down" in winter! Play safe and keep every passenger in your auto safe! Be sure too that your auto is ready for winter driving. Common sense also says to keep your car covered with insurance. Make sure its proper insurance. See us today.

But as he paused before him, ... happened and grabbed George's hand. "Hello! Hello! Hello! It's George Madison! It's George Madison!"

"Let me get I'm James Farnum!" exclaimed the terrified George, trying to pull away.

"What a break!" said the strange man, holding out his hand. "I've been looking for you a very long time! Thought you might blow back—they generally do!"

"Plain clothes, eh?" sneered George. "I'll prove you're wrong—I'll sue—"

"Can't fool me," piped up old Tim. "I get to know a man's foot-steps after hearing 'em for 15 years!"

Gives Schedule For Keeping Frozen Foods

Tastiness of the frozen fruits and vegetables from your locker depends upon the length of time they have been in how they were wrapped and the temperature of the locker.

If you wrapped them properly and stored them at zero degrees Fahrenheit you can reckon how long they will keep fresh and check them out accordingly.

Suggestions for the length of time various foods may be kept under proper conditions are made by Pauline Paul, of the foods and nutrition department at Michigan State College.

Many foods will keep up to 12 months. Whole kernel sweet corn, sliced apples, rhubarb, blackberries, boysenberries, loganberries, raspberries, strawberries, peaches, apricots, plums and pumpkin or squash pulp may be held that long.

Also included in the list that may be kept a year are blueberries, huckleberries, broccoli, cauliflower, lima beans, parsnips, peas, spinach and other greens.

From 8 months to a year you may keep cantaloupes, beans, corn on the cob and fruit juices with the exception of the citrus variety. Mixed fruits, asparagus and citrus fruit juices may be kept from 6 to 8 months.

Any old muffler won't do for your Buick

Even the best ordinary muffler can cut your car's horsepower as much as 25%.

Not so with a factory-engineered Buick muffler. Buick engineers designed this "straight through" muffler to do its job with only 2½% loss in HP—ten times better performance.

That's why—when rust and corrosion have finally made your car's muffler noisy and unsafe—you should replace it with a factory-engineered Buick muffler. And no other. Only Buick-engineered parts will keep your Buick always a Buick—and always at its best.

CAN YOUR DOG READ YOUR MIND?

A dog's mournful howl announced the death of his mistress in a hospital miles away! This is one of the many cases causing scientists to wonder if animals have extra-sensory perception. "Can Your Dog Read Your Mind?" in The American Weekly, great magazine with this Sunday's (December 5) issue of Detroit Sunday Times.

Common Cold Still Defies Science

With about 94 per cent of the American population due to come down with at least one cold during the next twelve months, scientists throughout the country are continuing their fight against the nation's number one disease. At any one time in the winter, an average of 23,000,000 persons suffer from this unpleasant ailment. Experts estimate that colds cost the nation at least $2 billion annually in medical expenses and lost pay.

What causes the common cold has puzzled humanity for over 2,000 years. During the course of history many theories have been advanced, including everything from "pestilential vapors" and the influence of comets to bed bugs and face powder.

About twenty years ago, it became generally agreed among the medical profession that colds were caused by viruses, invisible bits of matter which reach their victims through the air as well as by direct contact.

Then, late in 1947, the U. S. Public Health Service announced that researchers at the National Institute of Health had succeeded in isolating a virus which is the cause of one type of common cold.

But the researchers themselves stated that their work pointed only "to the possibility, not the probability of producing a vaccine." Nevertheless, this first successful isolation of a cold-causing virus is a real ray of hope for the eventual solution of the problem. Although no cure for colds has been found, there are ways to avoid them. Medical authorities offer these suggestions as the best insurance against colds:

Keep healthy by eating proper foods and getting enough fresh air and exercise and plenty of rest.

Avoid chilling by dressing properly—wear warm clothes in cold weather and wear overshoes, rubbers and protective covering when it rains or snows.

Whenever possible, stay strictly away from anyone who has a cold and keep out of drafts.

If you fall victim to the common cold, go to bed and rest, eat light meals, and drink plenty of water. Call a doctor if you have a fever, aches or a racking cough for more than 24 hours.

Why Dutch is Growing a Beard

That beard on Dutch Miller's chin doesn't mean that he's getting ready to play Santa Claus. He's simply paying off the election bet he lost to Cappy Swanson.

And while some folks allow it's all a lot of nonsense—like the wheelbarrow ride that Cappy had to give Dutch after last election day—from where I sit, it's a mighty wholesome aftermath to a difference of opinion.

Because good Americans all take their politics and voting mighty seriously. But when the issue's settled, and the die is cast, they accept the verdict in a spirit of good humor.

And that's as it should be when it comes to any difference of opinion. Some folks vote for beer as their favorite beverage—others vote for cider. In fact, we all have differences of taste in almost everything! But that doesn't mean that we can't live together in a spirit of good fellowship.
